Administrative/Biographical History:
Martha “Marty” McMaster Quimby (January 1930 - October 2021) was a long-time resident of Anchorage, Alaska. She was born in Washington DC and grew up travelling around the world as part of an Army family. She graduated high school in Tennessee in June 1947 and attended Mills College in Oakland, California where she studied art, with an emphasis on drawing. She met her future husband, Thomas W. Quimby, at a dance with the Coast Guardsmen. After her college graduation in 1951, the two became engaged and married in January 1953. They raised a family of five children.

Martha returned to college to earn her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from California State University, Hayward and began working as a Registered Nurse. Her family moved to Alaska in 1977 and she worked as an Emergency Room nurse at Providence Hospital. In the 1980s, she worked for the State of Alaska as an itinerant Public Health Nurse and travelled around the state for ten years. During this time, Martha earned her Master of Public Health from the University of Washington through remote coursework. In the 1990s, Martha began working for the Alaska Department of Corrections as a Nurse Coordinator and retired from this position in 1996.
Martha passed in October 2021.
