TITLE: Tom Cook Papers

COLLECTION NUMBER: B2017.012

OVERVIEW OF THE COLLECTION

Dates: 1972-2001

Extent: 4 boxes; 2 linear feet

Language and Scripts: The collection is in English.

Name of creator(s): Thomas Cook; Oil/Whalers Working Group, Marvin Mangus

Administrative/Biographical History:

The Oil/Whalers Working Group was established in 1986 to facilitate information sharing and cooperation between the oil industry and North Slope whaling crews. Some published reports indicate that the group disbanded in 1988. According to documents within the collection, an amended agreement was signed in 1989 between oil companies engaged in offshore exploration activities in the Beaufort Sea and whalers from Kaktovik and Nuiqsut, as well as the Alaska Eskimo Whaling Commission. The agreement provided for "coordination of oil and gas industry exploration with Inupiat subsistence whaling activities." The intent was to limit the movement of oil industry vessels in active whaling areas, and to minimize the disruption to whale behavior in active exploration areas. To facilitate information sharing and communications, radio call centers were set up in various locations. Whaling crews called in with information on whale movements, ice coverage, weather, and hunts, and industry vessels and aircraft called in with planned routes and activities.

Tom Cook was a geologist. He was born June 18, 1936, in Muskogee, Oklahoma. He graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and received a Master's of Business Administration degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He came to Alaska in 1976 as the executive director of the Pipeline Commission and later became the director of the Division of Minerals and Energy Management. In 1980, he joined Chevron as Alaska's exploration representative. His main focus with Chevron was to foster a working relationship between the North Slope villages and Chevron. In 1986, he began work with the first Oil/Whalers Working Group. After retiring from Chevron, he continued working as a consultant with the group. Tom Cook died in 2010.
