Administrative/Biographical History:
Born 1906, Margaret Lantis died in Dayton, Ohio, on September 8, 2006, a few days after her 100th birthday. She was educated at University of Minnesota (BA, 1930) and the University of California Berkeley (1939, PhD). She was the first anthropologist to focus on Alaskan Eskimo ceremonialism, completing her dissertation on the topic. She served with the U.S. Public Health Service from 1954-1963, including time spent at the Arctic Health Research Center in Anchorage. Before joining the Health Service, Lantis conducted four sessions of field work in Alaska, beginning as early as 1933. From 1965-1974, she was professor of anthropology at the University of Kentucky, specializing in North America and especially the circumpolar north. She was the author of numerous articles and reports on Alaska Native ethnography. Some of her field notes and photographs were used in the publication of Nunivak Island Eskimo (Yuit) technology and material culture, written by James VanStone. In 1987, Lantis won the Society for Applied Anthropology’s Malinowski Award.
