

DAGUERREOTYPE COLLECTION. Daguerreotype. .13 cu. ft. n.d.
B75.134.78. Inventory.

The daguerreotype was found in a folder of material about the Nabesna Gold Mine. According to Geoff Bleakley of the National Park Service, Wrangell-St. Elias, the image is not Carl Whitman. The identity of the man is unknown.

The Daguerreotype Collection contains one image in a daguerreotype. The subject is male, in his thirties or forties, and is wearing a suit. The portrait is from mid-chest up.

This collection was donated to the Anchorage Museum in 1975.
