Bill Faucett worked on the Alaska Highway during World War II.

The Faucett Collection consists of one folder containing 11 photographs. The photographs are black and white, most are 3 ½ by 5 inches and are primarily of Anchorage and Fairbanks in the 1940s. All but one photo has “Passed by US Army Examiner #20481” on the back

This collection was donated to the Anchorage Museum by Bill Faucett in 1995. The collection was brought to the archives by Lois Simenson of the BLM after a trip to Arizona, where she met with Mr. Faucett.
