Administrative/Biographical History:

Etta Eugenie Schureman ("Tetts") was born to Abram and Esther Parker Schureman in Waterbury, Connecticut, on September 30, 1879. In 1922, she traveled to Tanana, Alaska, with her sister Marie ("Dump"). In 1923, she married Charles Foster Jones ("Foster") in Tanana, Alaska. Foster was born May 1, 1879, in St. Paris, Ohio, to Dr. Caleb and Sarah E. Morris Jones. Foster had come to Alaska in 1898 to join the gold rush. Etta and Foster lived in Tanana, Old Harbor, and Kipnuk, Alaska, before moving to Attu in September of 1941.

Etta was working as a Bureau of Indian Affairs teacher, and Foster as a radio technician, on Attu when the Japanese Navy invaded the island in 1942. Foster was killed during the invasion, and Etta was taken to Japan as a prisoner of war. There, she was interned with Australian nurses, who had been taken prisoner in New Guinea. Etta Jones remained in a Japanese POW camp from June 1942 until her liberation in July 1945. Etta died December 12, 1965, in Bradenton, Florida.

Mary Breu is the daughter of Elinor Smith Christianson, daughter of Etta Jones' sister Ellen Schureman Smith ("Nan"). She is the author of Last letters from Attu: the true story of Etta Jones, Alaska Pioneer and Japanese P.O.W.
