The collection consists of one spiral-bound album measuring 9.25 x 8.25 inches, containing 160 photographs and ephemera gathered during two trips to Alaska. The first (.1-.86) was in 1937, leaving from Vancouver aboard the Prince Robert, with images on and from the ship, and of stops in Ketchikan, Juneau, Skagway, and Sitka. The second trip (.87-.160), from the summer of 1940, seems to have started in Valdez, with a side trip to Cordova, then up the Richardson Highway, with images of sights and lodging along the way, stops in Big Delta and Fairbanks—then by train to McKinley and down to Anchorage.
