ANCHORAGE MUSEUM

2022

GRATITUDE REPORT

Nurturing Ideas, Transforming Perspectives, Building Resilient Communities

MUSEUM

As the Anchorage Museum reflects on the past year's accomplishments and challenges, we are truly humbled by the profound impact of your support.

Your ongoing dedication and generous contributions — to the Anchorage Museum and the Anchorage Museum Foundation have enabled your museum to curate and develop exhibitions, programs, and experiences that challenge our thinking, celebrate the North, and invite dialogue that pushes boundaries.

Your belief in the power of ideas, your dedication to transforming narratives, and your commitment to building resilient communities are the cornerstones of the Museum's success.

As we move forward, we do so with the shared vision of a better future for all - a future shaped by your generosity and our collective commitment.

Your museum is committed to fostering a space where ideas flourish and perspectives are transformed. In 2022, your support enabled your museum to:

■ Welcome over 128,000 visitors back to the Museum to learn, gather and build connections

Develop more than 15 timely and resonant exhibitions such as Pass the Mic, Alaska from Above: The Art of Bradford Washburn, and the Alaska Biennial, which provide a way for people to examine their connection to the North and each other

Enhance students' educational experiences with over 150 online curricular resources and access to the Museum through in-person and virtual field trips

 Support artists and creatives in broadening their audience and deepening creative practice through residencies, writing, film, sound, performances, and exhibitions

Share and steward the stories of our North through the writer-in-residence program, the Chatter Marks podcasts and Journal, and the Museum's library and archives

• Develop ever-stronger relationships with stakeholders and diverse communities, developing exhibitions and programs together that build community resilience

• Grow the Museum's endowment to provide for today and ensure a sustainable tomorrow for the Anchorage Museum

Thank you for your pivotal role in the journey we are taking together.
