Updated by Chloe Nielsen, Archivist, 2022

This guide is intended to assist researchers in locating Russian and Orthodox Church materials in the holdings of the Bob & Evangeline Atwood Alaska Resource Center of the Anchorage Museum at Rasmuson Center. It is not necessarily a complete listing of all holdings pertaining to Russia or the Orthodox Church in Alaska. Please contact ARC staff at resourcecenter@anchoragemuseum.org or 907-929-9235 for assistance in locating other collections of interest.

The collection consists of one photograph album, 33 loose commercially-produced images and photographic postcards, and one pamphlet documenting a trip on the White Pass & Yukon Route, from Portland to Alaska, through British Columbia and Yukon and up the Inside Passage, taken by Allan Rennie in the mid- to late-1920s. Included are one image of the interior of St. Michael the Archangel Cathedral in Sitka (.153), one of an icon (.91) and one of the exterior (.92)

Ernest Alexander Gardner Album, B2009.002

Ernest Alexander Gardner served with the United States Army in Unalaska and Cold Bay during WWII. This collection consists of one album containing 687 images, including personal and commercial photos. Nine photos depict Russian Orthodox churches and cemeteries in Unalaska (.63g, .64a-64e, .65f, .65m) and Kodiak (.63h).

Farrel Smith Album, B2009.016

Farrel Smith served with the Navy on Unalaska during WWII. This collection consists of 54 personal and commercial images, primarily from Unalaska and Dutch Harbor during WWII. Two photos depict Holy Ascension Russian Orthodox Church and cemetery in Unalaska (.3, .28).

Norman Kozberg Photograph Album, B2011.005

This collection consists of one photograph album containing 68 black-and-white photographs taken during Kozberg's service with the U.S. Army in Unalaska and other parts of Alaska during WWII. The album contains various shots of the Holy Ascension Orthodox Church and its cemetery (.8, .17, .18, .46, .51, .59.).

Eugene C. Jack Collection, B2012.025

This collection consists of 35 black-and-white photographs of Alaskan scenes of the 1910s and 1920s, taken by Eugene C. Jack, an amateur photographer who served with the U.S. Navy building radio towers. Three photos depict Russian churches in Unalaska (.2-4).

Diliara Safaralievva Manuscript on Mikhail Tikhanov, B2013.031

Several versions of Safaralievva's manuscript on Mikhail Tikhanov, including fifty images intended as illustrations. In the mid-1990s, Diliara Xanym Safaralievva, head of the Graphics Department of the Scientific-Research Museum of the Academy of Arts in Leningrad, wrote an article on Russian artist Mikhail Tikhanov for the Anchorage Museum's exhibition catalog, Russian America: the forgotten frontier. Museum staffer Mina Jacob translated the article from Russian into English for publication. Subsequently, Safaralievva contacted Jacob for assistance in translating a longer manuscript on Tikhanov into English for the University of Washington Press. Apparently, the book was never published. Mikhail Tikhonovich Tikhanov (1789-1862) studied historical painting at the Academy of Art in St. Petersburg. In 1817, he sailed with V.M. Golovnin on the Kamchatka; during the expedition, he made at least 43 sketches, including 19 extant sketches of Alaskan peoples and scenes.

Vladimir Guliaev Photographs, B2013.032

The collection consists of 199 photographs taken by Vladimir Evgenevich Guliaev in Siberia, while he was serving as photographer on an anthropological expedition led by Don E. Dumond and Oleg Viktorovich Bychkov in 1992. Most are black-and-white prints, but there are a few color prints. The images seem to document the Evenki of Khanda, about whom Dumond, Bychkov, and Ronald Wixman wrote in 1992, as well as the Tofa.

The collection includes images of the social life and customs of the local people, portraits, and landscape photography. There are a few images of the expedition members (Guliaev, #103, Dumond and Bychkov, #100-102). Most of the large format prints carry manuscript identifications on the versos.

Valerii Orsoev Manuscript on “Tracking the Missing ‘Boston’”, B2013.033

According to the résumé included in the collection, Valerii Petrovich Orsoev was a writer for Sovetskii sport magazine. A Buryat by ethnicity, Orsoev was living in Irkutsk when he wrote this article on the crash of a Douglas A-20 bomber in Siberia during the World War II-era Lend Lease program. Hoping to get the article translated into English for publication by the Alaska Geographic Society, Orsoev sent the article to Mina Jacobs in Anchorage. The collection consists of a Russian manuscript of an article, along with five photographs intended as illustrations. An English abstract is titled “Tracking the Missing ‘Boston’.”

Aleksandr Omelianenko Photographs, B2013.034

The chapel of St. Nicholas of Myra near Vladivostok was originally dedicated c. 1871 and was destroyed during the Soviet era. In 1989, a group of local residents decided to rebuild the chapel. The collection consists of eight color transparencies of the consecration of the chapel site and a two-page typescript description in Russian, signed by Omelianenko, titled Vozvrashchenie (“The Return”).

E.A. Mikhailova Manuscripts on ritual objects of the Yuit Eskimos and Chukchi, B2013.036

Elena Alekseevna Mikhailova had presented a paper on ritual objects at a conference in Fairbanks, Alaska, and wrote up a longer version of that research for possible publication. She graduated from the Department of Ethnography and Anthropology of the Faculty of History, Leningrad State University. In 1980 she defended her dissertation on “The traditional and modern culture of Siberian Eskimos.” She was the co-author, with Igor Krupnik, of “Landscapes, faces and memories: Eskimo photography of Aleksandr Forshtein, 1927-2007” (Alaska journal of anthropology, v. 4, no. 1/2 (2006)). The collection consists of two manuscripts, one in English and one in Russian, on the ritual objects of the Yup’ik and the Chukchi peoples. The English manuscript is titled “Ritual Objects at the Asiatic Eskimos Fall-Winter Festivals.” The title of the Russian manuscript translates to “Ritual objects related to the festivals of Asiatic Eskimos and Chukchi (based on the materials of the Museum of Anthropology and Ethnography.”

Sacred Space, Sacred Time Exhibition Collection, B2013.037

The collection consists of one DVD, 78 35mm slides, correspondence, icon lists, and other ephemera pertaining to the development and presentation of the exhibition “Sacred Space, Sacred Time,” which highlighted the icons of the Holy Assumption of the Virgin Mary Russian Orthodox Church in Kenai, Alaska.

Vasilii Shumkov Collection, B2013.039

According to a news article published in Vodnyi Transport on January 24, 1991 (“Muzey Repressii”), Vasilii Shumkov exhibited these photographs in Magadan in a show titled “Proshcheniiu ne Podlezhit.” The collection consists of 19 mostly large-format black-and-white photographic prints of the Soviet-era gulag known as the Butugichag Corrective Labor Camp, and one newspaper.

Vasilii Sviridenko Collection, B2013.040

Vasilii Petrovich Sviridenko was a Magadan-based photographer. The collection consists of 23 black-and-white photographic prints, two typescript documents, a newspaper clipping, and an illustrated Russian postal envelope. Images 1-6 are of a dance troupe at a folklore concert held December 2-3, 1990, in Magadan, Russia. Images 7-23 depict the social life and customs of Native peoples, possibly the Evenki and Chukchi, probably in Magadan or Chukotka. An accompanying news clipping is dated October 1, 1989.

Zemlia Severnaia Album, B2013.041

The collection consists of one album, measuring 10.25 x 6.25 inches, containing 20 color photographs mounted on cardboard. The album cover bears the title Zemlia Severnaia (Northern Land) in gilt lettering. The photographs may be of Magadan, Russia, and neighboring areas. Included are images of cities and settlements (.1, .3-4), construction (.2), scenery (.5-.17) and wildlife (.18-.20).

Russian America Binding Waste Collection, B2013.042

The collection consists of one printed and four manuscript pieces of binding waste. The printed pieces have been identified as portions of Supplement #100 of the Sanktpetersburg Gazette from Tuesday May 2, 1833. Of the manuscript pieces, one is identified as a letter from a missionary to the governor; one mentions the name Peter Egorovich Chistiakov; one appears to be a log of goods, dated January 1, 1831; and one is a portion of a ledger with dates of July 1, 1834. The provenance of the items is not clear, but they are possibly connected with a collection of texts found in an abandoned chapel on one of the Shumagin Islands and subsequently donated by Robert Reeve to the Cook Inlet Historical Society in 1966.

Fort Ross Blockhouse Photograph, B2013.043

Aleut Russian Orthodox Manuscript, B2013.044

Nine-page manuscript written in Aleut language in Church Slavonic transcription, with Orthodox hymns. Written on waste ledger paper. The manuscript was probably used in the Aleutian Islands in the mid-19th century.

Katherine G. Kane Manuscript, My Twenty Seven Years in Alaska and the Aleutians, B2013.049

Katherine Gertrude Kane worked as a teacher and public health nurse in rural Alaska from 1913-1938. She worked in Nushagak, Kenai, Talkeetna, Susitna, Kokrines, Anchorage, Akutan, Koggiung, Copper Center, and Alitak/Akhiok. This collection consists of a 255-page typescript manuscript c. 1938 written by Kane, which is illustrated with 74 mounted and loose photographs. Three of these photos depict Orthodox churches in Akutan (.29, .57) and Kodiak (.55).

Barbara Sweetland Smith Papers, B2013.050

Barbara Sweetland Smith (1936-2013) was a noted scholar of Russian America and the Russian Orthodox Church. She was a professor of Russian history at the University of Alaska, Anchorage; co-curated exhibitions on Russian America at the Anchorage Museum; and worked with the Orthodox Diocese of Alaska to document and preserve Russian American heritage in the state. She received the Russian Order of Friendship in 2001, and the Order of St. Herman from the Russian Orthodox Church. The collection consists of research files, correspondence, records, and photographic materials, audiocassettes, and banners assembled by Smith during the course of her research on Russian America and her work with Alaskan organizations and agencies. Of note are files pertaining to the Anchorage Museum exhibitions "Russian America: the Forgotten Frontier," "Heaven on Earth," and "Science Under Sail;" records of the organization and work of R.O.S.S.I.A., Inc. (Russian Orthodox Sacred Sites in Alaska); documentation of Smith's work for the Aleutian Pribilof Islands Association; and the records of the Native Organization Records Project (NORP) of the Alaska Native Foundation.

Joan Townsend Photographs, B2013.066

Joan B. Townsend was a professional anthropologist who, from 1960-1982, conducted numerous archaeological surveys and excavations in the Iliamna Lake region of Alaska, studying Dena'ina and Yupik Natives. This collection consists of 440 color 35 mm slides and 61 Polaroid color prints created or collected by Townsend during her fieldwork in Alaska, 1962-1973. Eight photos depict Russian churches in Kenai (.218), Newhalen (.230) and Pedro Bay (.367-372).

Charles W. Wray Negatives, B2014.012

This collection consists of 95 3.25"x5.5" nitrate negatives. Charles W. Wray was assigned to a teaching post in Nushagak in 1910 and Shishmaref in 1912. During this time, he took photos in and around Nushagak, Kulukak, Dillingham, Kanulik, and Seward. Three photos depict Russian churches (.19, .68, .73).

Ellerbe Wood Album, B2014.029

This collection consists of one album measuring 10"x7", containing 34 personal and commercial photographs of Alaskan scenes, most by J.E. Thwaites. Of these, three are photographs of Russian churches in Nushagak (.2) and Unalaska (.3, .11).

Alaska Friends of Chukotka Records, B2015.006

This collection consists of photographs, negatives, records, journals, correspondence, original art, and audiovisual materials from the Russian Far East Task Force of the United Methodist and Moravian Churches. As of 2022, this collection has not been fully processed.

Kenneth Fleshman and Shirley Hyde Hood Alaska Collection, B2015.020

This collection, including photos, postcards, and ephemera from a trip up the Inside Passage in 1937, contains one photograph of the interior of an unidentified Russian Orthodox church, taken by Sawyers (.41), and one color lithographic postcard showing the exterior of St. Michael the Archangel Cathedral at Sitka (.49).

Russian Far East Slides, B2015.033

This collection consists of 24 color 35mm slides sold as four commercial sets: "Vladivostok Port and Town;" "Primorie Bays and Shores;" "Autumn in Primorie," and "Underwater World."

Fran Durner Collection, B2016.004

This large collection of the freelance work of photojournalist Fran Durner includes images of the Old Believer community in Nikolaevsk, as well as images of the Russian Orthodox churches in Ninilchik and Sitka. There are also many photos from a concert referred to as the "Thawing of the Ice Curtain," in which Russian music stars Stas Namin and Rondo performed with American rock star Eddie Money at the Sullivan Arena in Anchorage on February 2, 1989.

USCG Cutter Chelan Album, B2016.008

This collection consists of one 10"x7" album with photos, postcards and news clippings collected during the Cutter Chelan's tour in the Bering Sea in 1935. Three photographs depict Russian churches in Unalaska (.31, .38, .42).

John Snelling Slide Collection, B2016.010

This collection consists of 473 color 35 mm slides, all purchased by John Snelling. Two photos depict St. Michael the Archangel Cathedral in Sitka (.149, .151). One depicts St. Peter's By the Sea in Sitka (.155). One depicts a Russian Orthodox cemetery in Eklutna (.268). Seven depict St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox Church and its cemetery in Eklutna (.333-339).

William Randy Brandon Collection, B2016.019

This collection consists of approx. 20,000 photographs taken by professional photographer William Randy Brandon, who has operated Third Eye Photography in Girdwood since 1974. From 1984-2001, he also worked out of a commercial studio in Anchorage. This collection contains many photos of Russian Orthodox churches in Ninilchik and Eklutna in the following formats: 35 mm slides; medium format slides; 4x5 and card-mounted transparencies; strip transparencies.

Alissa Crandall Photographs, B2017.017

This collection consists of 210 black-and-white 35mm negatives and 102 prints taken by Alissa Crandall, who took public relations photography for the Chugach Council Camp Fire in the 1970s. 19 photos depict Russian churches and their cemeteries in Newhalen (.53-58, .85-87, .100, .102, .111) and Chuathbaluk (.202, .204-209).

Otto Kowalke Inside Passage Album, B2017.026

This collection consists of one album containing 64 silver gelatin snapshots, 36 postcards, and ephemera collected or created by Otto Kowalke and his family during their trip up the Inside Passage aboard the S.S. Spokane in 1905. One photo depicts St. Michael the Archangel Cathedral in Sitka (.60), and one St. Peter's By the Sea Episcopal Church in Sitka (.63).

Nancy Lesh Collection, B2018.012

Nancy Lesh was the Alaskan Librarian at the University of Alaska Anchorage Consortium Library. She traveled extensively within and outside the state. This collection consists of 79 commercial slides and 110 postcards collected by Lesh. One photo depicts a Russian Orthodox church with no location (.83), two depict Holy Resurrection Cathedral in Kodiak (.129-130), one Holy Assumption of the Virgin Mary Church in Kenai (.133), and one a Russian church in Ninilchik (.135).

George Darrow Slides, B2019.006

George Darrow served with the United States Air Force and was stationed at Elmendorf Air Force Base in 1973. He was also stationed at Shemya from November 1974-February 1975. After retiring from the Air Force in 1978, Darrow remained in Anchorage and worked for the Department of Veterans Affairs until retirement in 2005. This collection consists of 743 color 35 mm slides taken by Darrow during his residence in Alaska. Seven photos depict Holy Assumption of the Virgin Mary Church in Kenai (.336, .342-344, .347-349), five Transfiguration of Our Lord Church in Ninilchik (.351-355), two St. Nicholas Church in Seldovia (.405, .409), six Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church in Kodiak (.650-651, .654-655, .660, .662), and one Holy Ascension Church in Unalaska (.666).
